AARP tackles discrimination

Age discrimination in the workplace is a problem that AARP is working to solve. The organization is currently fighting a lawsuit against the U.S. Postal Service, which it claims has discriminated against older workers. AARP is also working to educate employers and employees about the laws that prohibit age discrimination.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) was created by Congress in 1964 to enforce laws which prohibit employment discrimination on the basis of age, sex, race, disability, religion and national origin. It handles age discrimination cases and provides oversight and coordination of all federal regulations, practices and policies affecting equal employment opportunity.

AARP is the nation's largest nonprofit organization of Americans 50 and over. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a network of local chapters and experienced volunteers throughout the country.

Mt. Zion to celebrate 100th anniversary

The Greater Mt. Zion AME Church family of Pearlstone invites the public to come and worship with them during their '100th Year Church Anniversary Celebration' Sunday, Aug. 28 at 3:30 p.m.

Speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Robert Thomas, presiding bishop of the Eighth Episcopal District.

Age discrimination occurs when employers of the private and public sector refuse to recruit, hire, train or promote workers age 40 and over based on age. It is reflected in attitudes, policies and practices affecting every aspect of employment.

"Age discrimination is related to ageism. Some employers see older workers as being rigid, unadaptable, slow to learn, and physically and mentally unable to compete with younger workers," says Mitchell of Jackson.

"As state coordinator, it is my job to inform workers that age discrimination is against the law and that employers who discriminate based on age can be held liable for their actions and become subject to legal penalties. We also want to educate employers about the laws that prohibit employment discrimination on the basis of age, sex, race, disability, religion and national origin. window and entered the Necaise Crossing Coon Hunters clubhouse and allegedly stole a very small amount of cash, Burleson said. They left there and allegedly went to another trailer and stole two four-wheelers and were attempting to go to Bogalusa when they were caught.

"These were foster children and have been released to their guardian. This case will be handled by the youth court," Burleson said.

Officers overseeing the case are Burleson and Bruce Procopus.

ful activity possession with intent to distribute marijuana and criminal forfeiture.

Dolly's is owned by Vernon K. Lee, Clarence S. Lee, Darlene Marie Lee and Linda Darlene Lee. The store will remain open and continue to be operated by the Lee's until at which time it is sold.

"The quick stop was forfeited under a plea agreement. At the time that the Lee's were indicted, so was the property. $90,000 that the agents located at the Lee's homes was also part of the plea agreement," Assistant U.S. Attorney Ken McDaniell said.

"Some of the money that the agents found, was literally dug up out of the yard, McDaniell added.

$73,900 in cash was recovered from the residence of Clarence Steve Lee on August 6, 1992, which was part of the forfeiture.

Also, $19,543.00 in cash was recovered from the home of Vernon Keith Lee and was forfeited.

According to the indictment, the defendants were allegedly involved in a interstate drug ring which netted its members approximately $3,444,450.00 from January 1987 to August 1992.

Martinez, who will be sentenced on Sept. 20, was convicted in July on two counts of interstate travel and one count of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute marijuana.

Sentencing is scheduled for Aug. 16 for Leandro Rendon and Sanders. Vernon K. Lee, Clarence S. Lee, Smith and Hilario Rendon will be sentenced on Sept. 20.

The case against Darlene M. Lee is pending, but a plea is expected.

David Lane Lee's trail has been set for Sept. 19.

The residences of Clarence S. Lee and Vernon K. Lee, were not forfeited, as stated they were to be in the plea agreement, because they were heavily mortgaged.

ary engineering, acquiring necessary right-of-ways and property, constructing and/or reconstructing and improving existing or new highways, roads, streets and bridges, including two-lane, four-lane and multi-lane roads.

They will also be performing intersection improvements, providing signal retiming, turn-bay extensions, additional interchanges and other traffic modifications, within and approaching those counties in this state where legal gaming is being, conducted or is authorized.

Some of the improvements on Hwy. 90 will include a red light at the intersection of 90 and Washington Avenue and also a new red light at the intersection of Blue Meadow Road and 90.

"The light that is currently there is a time-delayed light. We will be placing a traffic flow light that changes due to the amount of traffic," Mississippi State Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows said.

Shows was adamant in the fact that 90 "will not be six-laned."

"It would take more than the $325 million that we have to do all of the roads to just six-lane 90," Shows said.

Briggs also said that the much-needed improvements will help with traffic flow in the event of hurricane evacuation.

Shows told those in attendance that the state is also looking at putting in another east-west corridor between Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, but it will be 10 to 12 years away.

One of the problems with starting this type of project, Shows said, is the intermingling of funds between the three states.

cussed the surveys that were made to gather comments and/or approval from the parents before the changes were made, and that very few responded. The new schedule was published, but the mothers present at Monday night's meeting missed seeing the announcement and were unaware of the changes.

School board president James Wilcox brought up a suggestion that had been made at a previous meeting for a student representative to join the board for its meetings. Having a teacher representative, to provide input from the instructors, was also discussed.

Richard Flowers said it was a "good idea." He talked about the selection process being based on academics and wanted to include both boys and girls in the scheme.

Tisdale said he was expecting additional information on a similar program. The board will take action during its next session.

In other action, the board approved sole source suppliers of workbooks and testing materials, approved minutes of meetings July 11, 13, and 25, and approved the claim docket for July. They also approved the transfer of funds to the general operating budget, awarded bids for food service and general kitchen equipment and okayed a request to advertise for sale buses No. 7 and No. 17, retired from the school system's fleet.

The board devoted a good deal of meeting time to reviewing revisions in the Bay High School student handbook.

Members arrived at the number of absences, both allowable and excessive, that will be permitted each student. Aside from personal days (5 per semester), all absences, such as doctor's and dentist appointments and deaths in the family, will have to be documented, with written excuses provided within a certain number of days.

Before the handbooks are printed, the board will have the opportunity to address any rules they are not comfortable with and report their findings to the superintendent.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., and the morning for the Hancock County School District and tomorrow for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

Any change in the Bay-Waveland District will be at several schools will begin at 8:30 a.m. this school year.

I have been hearing several concerned parents commenting about the starting time changes.

The new hours I understand is to help with the transportation of students to and from school.

The time change will mean changing of schedules for several parents who deliver their children to school while on their way to work.

I am hoping the new schedule will work out for all concerned.

One of the things I would like to mention to motorists is the importance to be on the lookout for students on their way back and forth to school.

School zone reduction in speed limits is also in effect, so we have to be prepared to slow down in the school zones.

We want all students to have a good year. In today's world it is very important to stay in school.

Jobs are becoming more and more technical, and education is more and more important to secure a good position.

Remember, I urge all students to stay in school.

While on the subject of students, I want to remind all about the big free kids fishing rodeo scheduled for Saturday.

This will be the tenth Gulf Coast Sportsmen's Club Kids Fishing Rodeo, headquartered at the American Legion Memorial Pier, Washington Street and Beach Boulevard.

Free registration will begin at 6 a.m. and end at 2 p.m. at the rodeo headquarters.

Scales will close at 5 p.m.

The fishing rodeo is open to boys and girls ages 13 and under.

Best of luck to all young anglers.

Saturday night will once again be Concert in the Park time in Bay St. Louis.

The concert is sponsored by the City of Bay St. Louis and the Bay St. Louis Foundation and is set for Saturday beginning at 6 p.m. on the tennis courts of the park next to the old Bay City Hall, South Second Street.

Admission is free, and concert goers are asked to bring blankets and lawn chairs.

Music is to be by the Pat Murphy Band, featuring guitarist Emile Guess and Sippiana Horns.

The band's brand of Sippiana soul music is described as an eclectic gumbo of jazz, New Orleans rhythm and blues and Memphis soul music. The concert is scheduled until 10 p.m.

There will also be food and refreshments available. Proceeds from the sales will benefit the Bay St. Louis Development Foundation.

So mark your calendars for Saturday's Concert in the Park. See you there.

I spoke to Mrs. Rene J. Duffour, wife of the author of the two-act comedy, Nun For The Money, Wednesday, and she informed me that last weekend tickets were sold out for tonight and tomorrow night's performances.

The comedy is being presented by the Diamondhead Players.

I have a feeling there may be a repeat performance at a later date if there is a demand.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Supervisor president responds to letter about beach signs

Dear Editor,

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has had the opportunity to read the letter to the editor relative to the signs placed adjacent to the renourishment sand beach area and, on behalf of Hancock County, would like to respond to these letters.

As you know, originally the county was going to have to use sand pumped from Henderson Point, Harrison County, which would have been very expensive and limited the project to about one and one-half miles.

During the bidding process a source of sand was found in Hancock County from Ramana-da Street in Bay St. Louis to Whispering Pines Street in Waveland.

We then contracted the Corps of Engineers and requested that they allow us to use this borrow area.

Due to the problems the Corps had by Buccaneer Park, they originally denied our request.

Members of the board, the engineer and the board attorney went to Mobile and met with the Corps of Engineers, but they still were not in favor of the removal of sand from that location.

Be that as it may, after many meetings with the Corps of Engineers they finally agreed to let the county use the borrow area in question, however, one of the things we were required to do is "install signs, north, east and west of the borrow area advising waders and bathers of the deepening water."

While the county is not happy with the sign locations, they are placed there not by choice, but as a requirement by the Corps of Engineers.

The signs may not be attractive, but in order to accomplish what the Board of Supervisors and Sand Beach Committee wanted, the signs are required by the Corps of Engineers.

If you have any questions, please contact me.

Yours very truly,
Michael Ladner
President

Hancock County
Board of Supervisors

Reader puzzled why library torn down for new building

Dear Editor,

I was shocked to see the beautiful library in Bay St. Louis destroyed in order to build a larger one.

The county must have a lot of money to spend on rebuilding instead of renovating the one that stood there for 20 years. Majority of the homes in Bay St. Louis is older than the library.

There was no justification to tear down that building in order to build another. Why couldn't the county just expand out the rear and to the west of the preexisting one?

I was amazed when I first saw the inside of the Kiln Library. If any library needs rebuilding, this one does.

The Kiln area is rapidly growing. The number of children attending the county schools in the Kiln area increases each year. These children need a fully equipped library close to home.

If there is any money to spare, please sent it to where the need is the greatest. When we give to those who need it the most, we see the greatest results. The money will be wisely spent and the rewards will be beyond measure.

I urge every person living in the Kiln area to pressure their supervisors to build us a new library. Both Waveland and Bay St. Louis will have one, so why can't we?

Sincerely,
Antoine Boyd
Bay St. Louis

Safe driving steps emphasized for back-to-school, Labor Day

Children returning to school and Labor Day weekend travel are important reasons for motorists to be particularly careful in upcoming weeks, according to the Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning.

"As they begin a new school year, children sometimes are not as careful as they should be in crossing streets and highways and before entering or after leaving school buses," noted Donald O'Cain, Public Safety Planning's executive director.

"Motorists should take an extra measure of caution," he said, "to help ensure that tragedy doesn't mar the beginning of school."

Whenever a school bus is stopped for loading or unloading passengers, Mississippi law requires other vehicles in proximity of the bus to also stop.

"Motorists in school zones, particularly, should be prepared for the unexpected, such as a child darting into the path of traffic," O'Cain said, "and always come to a complete stop in school crossing areas."

"In hurrying to reach a Labor Day weekend destination or to return from an outing on this last holiday of the summer, some motorists travel at excessive speeds or drive recklessly," he noted.

"There's also an increase of driving under the influence (DUI) of alcoholic beverages."

"These actions can be extremely costly in terms of death, injuries that can cripple individuals for the rest of their lives and expensive fines," O'Cain said.

"Help to ensure your safety, the safety of your loved ones and others on the highway by allowing sufficient time to safely reach your destination and return."

"Never drink alcoholic beverages before or while driving, and always use your vehicle safety belts, and be sure that all of your passengers are using safety belts or child protective devices. Remember, even good drivers can be involved in motor vehicle crashes."

"The safety reasons for being a careful driver should be enough encouragement to obey Mississippi's traffic laws, but, if they are not, motorists should be aware that violators face severe penalties," he said.

"It's likely that most drivers are aware of the stiff fines and possible jail time for DUI, speeding and other traffic offenses, but some drivers may not know that, as of this past July 1, the law requires all drivers and front-seat passengers to use safety belts for children passengers under 4 years of age to be buckled into child protective devices."

"Always remember that the motor vehicle can be one of man's 'best friend' or one of his deadliest enemies," he added.

"It's up to drivers, particularly at this time of year, to make the difference."

Heavy damage

The photo and photo of the bus, which was damaged by the Sept. 9, 1947 hurricane, Dickson's Drug Store, a Hamburger Shop, and Beauty Parlor are in the pile of rubble. Across Beach Boulevard from the demolished businesses is the A&G Theatre and Echo building located at State Street, Bay St. Louis. The Echo welcomes photos older than 25 years for publication. They will be returned to their owners.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Congress gets tough on phone fraud

Who hasn't picked up the phone during dinner, only to be disappointed to find a smooth talking scam artist on the other end of the line promising obnoxiously cheap vacations and land deals.

Well, if you are fed up with telemarketing scams, help is on the way. Congress has passed, and the President is about to sign a telemarketing bill that will give unsuspecting individuals swift new power to win restraining orders and damages from deceptive telemarketers. The bill would have no effect on the legitimate multi-billion, dollar telemarketing industry.

The landmark legislation would, however, give state attorney generals and private citizens the power to make fraudulent telemarketers pay. For years, many south Mississippians, from Wayne to Pearl River County, have contacted me to ask for Congressional intervention.

Many state attorneys throughout the country and consumers have argued that the federal Justice Department, which currently oversees such complaints, just can't move fast enough to catch "fly-by-night" operators. They also argue that the Justice Department doesn't have the resources to go after all the illegal operators, and therefore, simply focuses its resources on catching the largest operations.

Giving consumers and states the power to hone in on telemarketing crooks should considerably decrease the number of criminal operators. Deceptive telemarketers now may think twice before taking someone's money and then skipping town without making good on their promises.

Before a consumer could win damages, an attorney general would simply have to prove that the practices of the telemarketer had the effect of deceiving a customer. The telemarketing scams are estimated to cost the American consumer at least $15 billion a year.

This isn't the first time Congress has taken action to protect consumers from abusive telephone calls. It wasn't long ago when the phone would ring and a recording would immediately ask consumers to purchase products.

Thank goodness, in 1991, Congress barred the use of automated sale pitches. It also gave consumers the authority to call a telemarketer to stop calling.

It is unfortunate that Congress must take steps to rein in abusive telemarketing practices. But with millions of Americans becoming prey every year, the scam artists must be silenced. It is despicable that there are those who would deceive an unsuspecting consumer, most of them poor or elderly, simply to make a quick buck.

MORE NEW FACES AND PLACES

The Bozants and the Watsons of Diamondhead invite all to come enjoy delicious 'New Orleans specialties' and daily dinner and lunch specials at their new Poppa's Lagniappe Cafe and Catering, located at 443 Yacht Club Drive in Diamondhead. We wish them well in their new venture.

SWING YOUR PARTNER

Square dancers wanted for a new class to learn the dances. The first session will be Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at St.

Williams recreational hall located on the Kiln/Delisle Road.

According to club secretary Lanny Yeake, this may be one of the best things that ever happens to you. You will love it if you try it, and it's a perfect way to make new friends and expand into the community socially.

No prior dance experience necessary. Couples and singles are equally welcome. For information, please call 255-4010 or 255-5777.

LET'S DO MORE IN '94!

Take pride in this lovely community of Diamondhead and pick up as you go. Volunteers are needed for the annual fall cleanup for all of Hancock County on Saturday, Sept. 17. To help, please call Bob Valigorsky at 255-7198.

D'HEAD SPCA

Yes, we do have this organization in Diamondhead. They help so much with lost, abused, injured and stray animals in our community.

New officers and board members were elected at the June meeting. They are: president, Frances Pike, vice-president, Wanda Engelke; secretary, Lisa Pflug; and treasurer, Jean Keen.

The kennels remain busy and always in need of high quality dry food for dogs and cats. Leashes and collars, old and new, would be welcome, too. John or Helen Wise at 255-7680 will pick up these items and anything else you'd like to donate.

It is imperative that all witnessed cases of cruelty or abuse of animals and wildlife be reported to the SPCA at 255-4397 and to the sheriff's office at 467-5101. They rely on us for their protection. Love and protect your own pets, and have them spayed or neutered, please!

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT

"Nun for the Money," written and produced by New Orleans' own Rene Duffour and directed by Ben Doss of Diamondhead, premiers tonight at our own Dinner Theatre, Diamondhead Country Club at 7 p.m.

Ticket holders, please get there early to select your table for dinner and show. You will enjoy!

ATTENTION!

Boaters and jet skiers, Paradise Bayou and all the finger canals are no wake zones, per order of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. Jan. 17, 1990, wakes created damage to moored boats, bulkheads and wetlands.

Members and guests not complying with this regulation will not be allowed to use the marina, including the boat launch.

D'HEAD BRIDGE

The August Bridge Party Club will meet on Friday, Aug. 26 at 9:30 a.m. at the country club. This is the final party of the club year.

Please note that the club will be signing up for hostesses for the 1994-95 year, and dues for the coming year are due at this party also. The dues will remain at $100 for 12 parties, and checks should be made to Bridge Party Club and given or sent to Audrey Dean, 6825 Hilo St., Diamondhead.

ACADEMY HAPPENINGS

Registrations are being taken at Diamondhead Academy from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for the 1994-95 school year, which begins Aug. 17 at 8 a.m.

Extended care, before and after school, will be available again this year. There is space available in most classes. This year each grade, K-6 has its own classroom, and for the first time the fifth and sixth grades will be taught their academic subjects separately. There will be a half-day sixth grade teacher for academics, and then, because the number of students in these two grades are still somewhat small, the classes will be combined in the afternoon for the "specials," (music, PE, etc.)

Please call 255-1784 for more information. We wish this lovely facility for our children, Cal Rogers and her staff another successful year.

GOLFERS

Mark your calendars for Saturday, Sept. 10 for a free membership golf day on both courses. Format, to include men's and women's as well as couples' events, is being developed.

Notice, tee times now being taken two weeks in advance rather than 30 days.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Ice cream came a long, long way

Ice cream and its making have come a long, long way since those days in ancient Rome, when Nero's slaves ran swiftly high into the mountains to fill bowls with snow. Then they hastened down the mountains to the Emperor's palace, where the frozen treat of snow, fruit, wine and honey delighted the Emperor's palate.

And history tells us that the Emperor threatened instant death to any luckless slave runner who didn't make his way back to the imperial palace before the snow in his bowl melted!

I have no idea who actually invented ice cream as we know and enjoy it, but I'm very grateful for the discovery, aren't you? History, however, does tell us that Marco Polo tasted ice cream in 1295, in the course of his travels from his native Italy to the Far East.

He returned home to Venice from one such journey with tales of the marvelous milk sherbert which he had enjoyed in China. Soon, the Italians were making their own versions, and ice cream was enjoyed throughout Europe.

When the English colonists came to America, they brought with them their treasured "receipts" for this treat. They found their sources for ice in frozen rivers and streams high in the mountains.

Mixing cream and fruit in a pot, they beat the cream by hand, and shook the mixture up and down and around in another pot filled with ice and coarse salt.

With the coming of the ice house for storage, and later the hand-cranked ice cream freezer, it was no longer necessary to beat everything all up with a wooden spoon, you simply turned the crank and turned the crank and turned the crank some more!

Even today, some claim that the hand-cranked ice cream maker was the only way to make good ice cream. With the advent of electrical refrigeration and the machines, ice cream making, of course, became simpler and more widespread, as well as a thriving commercial enterprise, with millions of gallons now consumed each year in the United States. It is estimated by experts on such matters that Americans consume more scoops per capita than those in any other countries.

Vanilla is still the favorite flavor across the country, it is said, but one of my favorites is:

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM (Lazy-lazy way)

2 cups peach pulp
1/4 cup sugar
Juice of a lemon

Pinch of salt
1/2 pt. whipping cream
2 eggs, separated
2 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. vanilla

After you've mashed ripe, quite soft peaches into a pulp, add the 1/4 cup of sugar and the lemon juice, pour into a freezer tray and freeze for 45 minutes to an hour. Meanwhile, beat the egg whites stiff, adding the 2 tablespoons of sugar. Beat the yolks, separately, of course. Fold the beaten whites into the beaten yolks.

Whip the cream to the consistency of a thick custard, and combine with the egg mixture. Add the vanilla and the frozen peach pulp, mixing together lightly. Return to freezer until firm and ready.

Why do parents want their children to grow up? In spite of the way they act sometimes, parents do want their sons and daughters to grow up. Often they are afraid to the hard and dangerous choices teens will have to make. Deep down in their hearts, they also realize that as their teen is growing up, they are growing older. That scares them too.

If parents could get a guarantee their children would be happy, healthy, wise and caring, they might not worry so much.

They might enjoy watching you try your wings if they know for sure you were not going to have a fatal crash.

If parents had a built-in promise that as you made choices, you would be protected from life-wrecking consequences, they would let go more easily.

The things I've described are only make-believe. There are no guarantees. Bad choices often do create fatal crashes and other life-wrecking consequences.

Since that is the reality parents must live with, they try to protect their teens until they see the teens regularly making responsible and mature decisions for themselves.

This is probably where some of the conflict arises. You think have to earn respect, but they have to earn respect. It's not guaranteed upon reaching a certain age. Some teens are mature and responsible at age 16, while others may act very immaturely and irresponsibly at age 18.

Regular sharing of ideas and feelings and active listening between parents and teens beginning when the teens are children should make things easier all along the way.

Why do you think my boyfriend and I always fuss? I'm 18, and he's almost 21."

Without more information on the kinds of things you argue about or the circumstances that seem to trigger disagreements it is hard to answer your question. The best I can do is mention some general possibilities and suggestions related to those.

My first thought about your question was that your relationship had died and you hadn't buried it or that you had stopped communicating effectively with each other.

Why do you stay in a fussy relationship? That's a pretty stressful situation. I also wonder whether one of you most often starts the fuss. If you're the one who most often dislikes what your boyfriend says or does, have you ever talked with him about your feelings at a time when you're not upset?

If he's the one who usually starts the negative stuff, have

Women should be informed, prepared as more enter workforce in 1990s

As each class of freshly-minted graduates exits college campuses, career counselors can encounter special challenges as they help female students prepare to enter the working world.

"Over the last few decades, the makeup of our workforce has changed dramatically. In order to cope with some of today's realities, we try to help all of our students, especially women graduates, understand the issues they will face," said Sheila Hood, assistant director of The University of Mississippi's Career Center.

Because some current employment trends related to gender are discouraging, Hood makes it a priority to encourage females to pursue careers in traditionally male-dominated fields and vice-versa.

"We try to educate all of our students to ignore the sexual stereotypes surrounding certain jobs. If they are qualified, we want to help them to go after any job that appeals to them, regardless of perceptions that they might not get hired because of their gender," she said.

Hood cites Department of Labor and Census Bureau statistics showing current employment trends in society as they relate to gender. For example:

In 1990, more than 55 million women are employed in the United States, compared with 26.2 million in 1970.

Of the 120 million people working last year, 43.7 percent were women — an increase from 38.4 percent a decade ago.

Three quarters of all women work at least 35 hours a week, and two thirds of married women work full time. Workforce participation by women 15 to 44 years of age with newborn children has increased from 31 percent in 1976 to 54 percent in 1992.

Although 80 percent of women between 25 and 44 years of age probably will be in the workforce by 1995, women still earn only 72 cents for every dollar earned by a man. In the 1950s, women only earned 63 cents for every dollar.

Female managers and administrators earn 60.5 percent of what men earn, women in blue collar jobs earn 67.1 percent, and female professionals earn 70.8 percent of what their male counterparts earn.

In addition, Hood's advice to young women entering the job market includes a warning about the "glass ceiling" (a term for the trend showing women progress within management structures at a rate almost equal to males until a certain level, at which men are almost exclusively promoted over them) as they advance up their career ladders.

"With only .5 percent of CEOs at the top 1,000 for-profit companies, women and minorities need to be aware that although opportunities may be wide open at the beginning of their careers, progress could be limited after a certain point. If they know about it ahead of time, they can formulate strategies to avoid it," she said.

Through her duties with career services and placement, Hood also works to arm graduating students with information they need to enter the working world. Included in the job interview packets that the more than 800 seniors who pass through her office each semester receive is a list of inappropriate or illegal questions the job candidate does not have to answer.

WHAT'S AN ILLEGAL QUESTION?

These questions that delve into the job candidate's personal life are not legitimate occupational qualifications:

- Are you married?
- With whom do you live?
- If married, are you expecting to have children soon?
- What does your spouse do?
- Were your parents born in this country?
- How old are you? (But they may ask if you are legally old enough to work.)
- Have you ever filed for bankruptcy?
- Where do you bank?
- Have you ever been arrested? (Questions about criminal convictions, however, are allowed.)
- How many children do you have?
- If you have children, what kinds of child-care arrangements have you made?
- What memberships do you hold in social, religious and community groups?

Special to the Echo
From Thyla Rogers
President
Hancock County
Humane Society

The Hancock County Humane Society Inc. has supported itself for almost 20 years with the proceeds of a flea market operated by volunteers. We have never received money from any government or civic agency, but during this time we have helped untold thousands of animals in their time of need.

We have helped build and furnish the Waveland Animal Shelter, which under the directorship of Nancy Gallagher, has become the finest shelter in the state of Mississippi.

In the middle of September we will be closing our doors for the second time. Several years ago we were forced to leave the civic center in Waveland and now, because the landlord where we have been renting space on Hwy. 90 refuses to repair the air conditioning in our shop, we must leave again.

We hope to return to the civic center in Waveland. Several of the mayoral candidates have promised that it will be a priority on their election slate to return all of the charities to the civic center where they prospered for so many years.

On Sept. 13, 14 and 15 the humane society will hold a special "half-price sale" before we put our tables, shelving, etc. into storage.

We ask everyone to drop by, buy something and make donations of money. We will need help to sustain our society until we can set up shop again.

The Diamondhead Performing Arts Society presents "A Twilight Concert with Dennis and Nancy Assaf" on Sunday, Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Diamondhead Country Club.

The Assafs will sing solo and duet selections from Broadway musicals, operas, operettas and a medley of other popular music from the Spanish, Irish and English repertoire.

Several of the selections to be performed will be from the Broadway musicals 'Phantom of the Opera,' and 'A Little Night Music' from the operas 'La Rondine' and 'Lucia' and from the operettas, 'Mikado' and 'Showboat.'

Soprano Nancy Assaf has performed with the American Chamber Orchestra in New York City, the Denver Symphony Orchestra, the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, the Pensacola, Baton Rouge and New Orleans operas and numerous other orchestras and as a soloist with ballet companies throughout the United States and Europe.

Dennis Assaf, founder and executive/artistic director of the Jefferson Performing Arts Society, has conducted orchestras and choruses in Florida, South Carolina, New Jersey and New York. He created and conducts the Jefferson Symphony Orchestra with whom he appeared on national television with CBS and PBS. Assaf has been named New Orleans Magazine's 'Person to Watch in 1994,' one of only 50 such outstanding individuals so honored. His first selection was in 1982 for Performing Arts achievements.

Tickets for the performance are $12.50 for adults and $9.50 for students. Ticket price includes one complimentary drink. Seating is limited.

Tickets may be purchased at Diamondhead Discount Drugs or at the door the evening of the performance. For information call Lori Darkow, 255-4433.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Kidd

Kidds celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lucien William Kidd of Bay St. Louis celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house hosted by their children and their spouses: Billy and Janet Kidd of Houston, Texas; Geraldine and J.D. Rutherford, Donnie and Janet Freeman of Bay St. Louis; Diana and Howard McNeill, Lucinda and Bud Lang of Gulfport and John and Paula Kidd of Pass Christian.

Lucien and Beryl have 19 grandchildren and four great-granddaughters.

The Rev. Peter Mockler of Our Lady of the Gulf Church performed a special blessing upon the couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Freeman, while family and friends looked on.

Lucien and Beryl Kidd met in England in 1943 while he was serving with the United States 9th Air Force. They were married on July 15, 1944 in Colchester, Essex, England.

After World War II, Beryl joined Lucien in Bay St. Louis, where they have lived and reared their family.

...time. Then there's a surprise. When she's home, she's asked, "When is my time?" Take my friend, too many working women need to take care of the business of their own health. In the multiple demands they juggle, something has to go. That something is usually their own exercise, nutrition and relaxation.

Ironically, though, if women don't take the time for preventive health measures, they may run out of time. Heart disease or other illnesses could slow them down permanently.

Staying healthy takes a lot less time and energy than recovering from illness, too.

Medical researchers are increasingly paying attention to women's health needs and concerns. Here's a quick look at their best recommendations.

• Have a heart. Worried about your husband having a heart attack? Worry about yourself, too. Heart disease is the No. 1 killer of both men and women in this country, where women suffer more than 48 percent of all the heart attacks.

• If you smoke, stop. One survey found that at least 65 percent of young- to middle-aged women who suffered a heart attack had been smokers.

Smoking while using oral contraceptives increases your heart attack risk 39 times.

Quit smoking, though, and within 10 years, many of your health risks decrease almost to a non-smoker's level.

• Fight stress. It can debilitate you emotionally and physically. As many as an estimated 75 percent of visits to doctors are related to stress, anxiety or depression.

• Exercise your right to exercise. Moderate aerobic exercise, for about 20 to 30 minutes, at least three times a week, can improve both your physical and emotional health.

...time. Then there's a surprise. When she's home, she's asked, "When is my time?" Take my friend, too many working women need to take care of the business of their own health. In the multiple demands they juggle, something has to go. That something is usually their own exercise, nutrition and relaxation.

• Check it out. Especially once she turns 40, every woman should have regular physical checkups with her physician.

• Invest in yourself with nutrition. "Eat your vegetables," you tell your child. Women need to follow their own advice. Fruits and vegetables supply nutrients believed to fight disease.

One such nutrient is beta-carotene. A study found that women with low levels of it in their blood were three times more likely to have breast cancer. In another study, women who ate large amounts of it have a 22 percent reduction in the risk of heart attack and a 40 percent reduction in risk of stroke.

In addition to veggies, women especially need adequate calcium. Women past menopause need 1,500 mg daily, other women 1,000 to 1,200.

Although everyone should eat more complex carbohydrates — such as whole-grain breads, rice and pasta — women may avoid such foods, mistakenly believing they are fattening.

And of course, women, like everyone, should reduce the fat in their diet to no more than 30 percent of daily calories.

• Have some fun. Increasingly, research is showing that relaxation and caring about other people positively affect our health.

• Keep the faith. Live by your beliefs. When your actions contradict your beliefs, you have higher anxiety, stress and illness.

The above rules won't take over your life, but they can improve it.

Think of this line from an athletic shoes advertisement. In it, a woman taking aerobics says, "There are 24 hours in a day. This one's mine."

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

By Penny Bishop

Mrs. Jones is starting a new job today after 15 years of staying at home with her children. She is very apprehensive and somewhat fearful about the challenges her new job will bring, as well as what her new co-workers will think of her. This is just one example of everyday or common anxiety that people experience in their lives.

Most of us have had a similar experience of apprehension or fear of something or someone that has affected us. Some of us may be more affected by anxiety than others, depending upon our lifestyle and how we deal with stress and anxiety. In a recent workshop held at the North Shore Resource Center in Gulfport, G. Reid Doster, DMin, licensed professional counselor, discussed anxiety or stress, and explained strategies used to deal more effectively with them. The workshop proved to be very informative for anyone suffering from continuous anxiety or stress.

When anxiety or stress becomes frequent enough to interfere with daily life, this can become an anxiety disorder. In fact, more than 24 million Americans suffer from some type of anxiety disorder, according to the Anxiety Disorders Association of America.

Anxiety disorders can affect anyone; however, they are reported more often among women and young adults.

Many types of anxiety can lead to an anxiety disorder. The most common type is a phobia or fear of a place, thing or situation which causes one to go out of his or her way to avoid this fear.

Other types of anxiety include obsessive-compulsive disorder, such as constantly washing hands or clothing to rid self of germs, anxiety that has persisted for several months, due to stressful daily life situations, and traumatic incidents, such as war or rape.

Although no one is completely certain about what causes anxiety disorders, several factors throughout one's lifetime may contribute to them. Heredity, childhood circumstances, and cumulative stress over time can all possibly be linked to such disorders. For example, the authority figure (usually a parent or guardian) in one's childhood might have been overly critical or set excessively high standards; this can cause a long-term effect of anxiety and fear about failure later in life. As Dr. Doster emphasized throughout the workshop, "There is no such thing as failure... only feedback."

Biological causes may also evoke anxiety disorders, as may a significant personal loss, life change, or abuse of chemicals such as alcohol or drugs. Maintaining certain life behaviors, such as withholding feelings, lacking assertiveness, lacking self-nurturing skills, lacking social support systems, having muscle tension, experiencing a high-stress lifestyle, and having a lack of purpose or meaning in life can only contribute to the chance of incurring an anxiety disorder.

Anxiety disorders are sometimes associated with panic attacks, characterized by weakness in the legs, chills, shivering, trembling and/or shaking, pricking or tingling sensation of the skin, shortness of breath, dizziness, stomach discomfort or diarrhea, sweating, choking or smothering sensations, chest pain or discomfort or jumping or jerking movements.

Although all of these characteristics are not usually present at any given time, they may be evidence of a panic attack. These attacks may last anywhere from a few minutes to hours.

There is a bright light at the end of this fearful tunnel for those suffering from anxiety disorders. Many relaxation techniques are available to help alleviate or overcome fears in order to produce positive thoughts and therefore contribute to positive feelings.

In order to deal effectively with personal anxiety, it's important to learn to relax properly. Relaxation involves more than just unwinding after a hectic day. The relaxation process actually produces the exact opposite of the normal body stress or anxiety responses. Several options may be involved in a stress reduction process, depending on the individual's makeup and specific problems or issues.

Many options can be performed by the individual experiencing anxiety or stress. Relaxing yourself is the first step for managing anxiety. Also, one can more effectively handle anxiety or stress by replacing negative thoughts about one's self with more positive self comments. Practice in expressing feelings more, as well as becoming more assertive, can help when a potential stressful situation may arise.

One quick and easy relaxation technique that can be done alone achieves true "peace of mind" by using the senses. Begin by sitting as you would if you had peace of mind, then continue with breathing... feeling... hearing... seeing, and finally believing what you would if you had true "peace of mind."

Each step should be concentrated on for about 10 seconds. During the first few times the exercise is performed, it might take a few minutes, but after practicing several times, you will look forward to achieving true "peace of mind" in only 60 seconds.

In addition to these options, many other stress reduction techniques are available through the help of skilled mental health care professionals. Cognitive Behavioral Therapy or seeking help for thought processes, can help untwist any distorted thoughts that might be present to cause anxiety or stress.

are not alone

The purpose of this therapy is to produce the desired relaxed response.

For example, you might be anxious about public speaking, and are afraid of having a heart attack from your heart pounding so fast. Reflect back on the last time you spoke to a group of people. Did you have a heart attack then? Chances are that you didn't and won't have one this time you speak.

Also, these professionals can help uncover unconscious resources that alert one to a stressful situation. This can sometimes be accomplished through second and third person "dissociation." For example, picture yourself on a movie screen handling the dilemma, while you're in the audience observing. Do you notice any changes now that you're seeing yourself? If not, try moving into the projection booth where you're watching yourself watching the screen. At the projection booth, you have control over the action, and may speed it up or slow it down. Adjust the situation where it will not seem as stressful of an event and easier to handle.

Remember, if you're suffering from an anxiety disorder, you are definitely not alone. Millions of people suffer anxiety day in and day out. Stressful situations can be handled more easily by using the many options available.

In addition, many health care professionals, such as psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, clinical mental health counselors, clinical nurse specialists, and marriage and family counselors are available to assist with learning and using these options.

AHA alerts public to misinformation

The American Heart Association-Mississippi Affiliate reports that information being disseminated by a sound-alike organization could be misleading. The pamphlet has recently been mailed to Mississippians by Heart Support of America.

"The pamphlet entitled 'Seven Little Known Ways to Avoid Heart Attack and Stroke' is full of unsubstantiated recommendations," according to Dr. Thad Waites, president of the American Heart Association-Mississippi Affiliate.

"Recommendations ranging from daily alcohol consumption to aspirin therapy should have a disclaimer attached, which Heart Support of America fails to provide."

"The American Heart Association-Mississippi Affiliate cautions individuals who read this misleading pamphlet to realize that all the facts are not in or the recommendations contained.

In fact, one study recognizes that the risk of moderate to severe or fatal hemorrhagic stroke (bleeding of the brain) has significantly increased in those individuals who were part of the aspirin study."

"We want to alert all Mississippians that Heart Support of America is not part of the American Heart Association and that Mississippians who plan to contribute to other so-called 'heart charities' should look for the familiar heart-and-torch emblem before they give."

"We would also like to alert all Mississippians that the information contained in the Heart Support of America's 'Seven Little Known Ways to Avoid Heart Attack and Stroke' should be held suspect. If you have any questions about heart disease and stroke, please call the American Heart Association-Mississippi Affiliate at 1-800-AHA-USA1 to receive the latest and most accurate information about Mississippi's number one killer," Waites concluded.

James is a student at the Jefferson Davis Campus in Gulfport.

Sponsored by Mississippi-based Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society, the institute featured scholarly speakers, break-out discussion groups, cultural events and scholar bowl competition.

Participants explored a myriad of issues related to the society's 1994 Honors Study topic, "Science, Humanity and Technology: Shaping a New Creation."

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. The fishing reports of the past week have been nothing short of spectacular. In other words, the fish are biting pretty good. There are even reports of people catching the fish that are biting pretty good. This means that there is catching in addition to the biting, or something like that. For those who don't understand what I just said, don't worry, I don't understand it either.

Now for the reports. Wayne Graham is a dedicated fisherman I interviewed in from Clermont Harbor beach. Wayne was fishing in about two feet of water with live shrimp under a popping cork.

Since his shrimp was about two feet under the cork, the average person would think he was either not out deep enough to catch any fish, or he wanted to only catch "horned trout."

Wrong and wrong. It seems Wayne landed three redfish in this depth the day before. One of the redfish went 24 inches while the other two were 18 and 17 inches. So, Wayne knows what he is doing and had results to prove his action.

During the time I talked to Wayne he related some interesting information about fishin' in general. First, he stated the green men with the flashing blue lights informed him they were gonna be especially hard on fishermen who did not have their new fishing licenses.

Remember, the old ones expired on July 1. Next he related the green men had a whole bunch of paper that would lighten your wallets if you were found to have any redfish under 16 inches in your possession. Remember the new size limits which went into effect on Aug. 1 says you cannot have any redfish in your possession that are smaller than 16 inches. The size was reduced from 22 inches to 16 inches.

According to Wayne, he heard the commercial fishermen caught and sold over 50,000 pounds of redfish last year, even though the commercial limit was supposed to be 35,000 pounds, so the green men told him they are gonna watch everybody real close on their limits so as to prevent irreversible damage to the redfish population.

Wayne fishes from Ocean Springs to all points west, so he seems to know the waters pretty well. One of the hot spots he claims to be producing bunches of trout is the surf next to the long pier in front of the condominiums in Henderson Point.

But his "best of" favorite spot, over the past few weeks has been the Ulman Street Pier at night.

Around midnight or later, depending on the tidal flow, the trout gang up big time under the lights of the Ulman Street Pier. He claims you can even see them swimming under the lights as they attack your live shrimp.

The really hard part to fishing late at night is keeping your shrimp alive long enough to use them to catch the late night fish. It seems the shrimp currently available are a little soft and want to die before they can do their thing for the trout.

A couple of things you might want to consider if you are gonna use live shrimp for late night fishing: Try to get your shrimp as late in the evening as your bait place stays open. Make sure you have fresh strong batteries on your fish aerator. Keep the piece of ice about the size of your fist in your bait tank if you use a 48-quart ice chest, smaller pieces if you use a smaller bait bucket.

The cooler water helps keep the oxygen in the water longer, which keep the shrimp alive more better. Finally, don't try to put too many shrimp in too little water. Fifty shrimp in a gallon of water will die post haste pronto.

Live shrimp have not been very plentiful lately, so you might want to give your favorite live shrimp supermarket a phone call before you make the trip and come away empty-handed.

Talked to a group of fishermen who were fishing under the lights off the pier behind the Jubilee Casino the other night. One of the fishermen (fisherwomen), Melissa (Missy) Nicaise, pulled up two monster trout while I was standing there talking to them. Missy was very professional in the way she played the trout and brought it in from the waters under the lights.

There is a distance of several feet between the water and the pier upon which she was standing. She expertly got the fish out of the water into her bucket without any hassle. Her companion, Roy, said the only reason she caught the fish and performed so flawlessly was because she was using his equipment and his expertise.

I did wonder, however, why she had fish in her bucket and he had none in his bucket. Incidentally, they were using live shrimp.

Toxie Hall, down at LaFrange Camp in Ansley, reports the trout are showing up big time all over the area. This includes Herron Bay and the Pearl River system. It seems the saltwater concentration has finally come up enough in this area to bring in the specks, and boy are they hungry. Toxie has live shrimp and dead bait. His phone number is 467-9180.

Toxie related to me that the pelican with the deformed bill, who was living on the Pearl, was brought into the fish camp and taken away by the wildlife rehab people. It seems this pelican was born with his top bill curved back over his bottom bill.

He became a mascot of sorts with sportsmen in the area who fed him regularly. He apparently got enough food to reach adulthood. It is good to know that maybe the wildlife folks can help him with his birth defect, which should help him to enjoy life as he was meant to enjoy life.

One final word. It seems I did not report all of the escapades of Craig Sellier and his attempt to catch with his teeth the redfish he dropped overboard last week. It seems he so exhausted himself in the water that he had to be removed from Bayou Cad-dy with the straps of the boat hoist at Bordages boat launch. Just "helping you out" carries a new meaning for Craig.

This week's wonderful wise words: Hello to Dick's Wrinkle Club of Sportsman Paradise in Point a la Hache, La. Straight-en out, gang.

Did you ever wonder why they don't have sunshine at night time, Turtle?
